It has not been possible under the insurance code as vigilantly administered by Mr. Barnes, to carry on an insolvent losurance company in this State, nor to permit one to be introduced here from any other State. One marked effect of this rigid surveillance in New York is that the solvent companies of other States have eagerly sought admission under the department here in order that they might obtain its certificate of their soundness to accredit them elsewhere.

So sensible were the managers of our solvent control over the subject of life insurance, and moved that the test oath be administered to them. The report was sgreed to, and they were sworn in.
